

Our names are Andy and Stacie Wells. We are both addicts in recovery. We have both been clean from any mood changing and mind altering substances for many years. We met each other a few years ago while in recovery and have been married for over a year now. We have both seen our share of pain throughout our lives in active addiction. I've been through many jails, hospitals, detoxes, and multiple times in treatment. I have suffered multiple overdoses and survived one suicide attempt. Stacie has been through jail multiple times and has survived multiple suicide attempts. She has been through a life of childhood abuse and domestic violence and has suffered multiple overdoses. Stacie also deals with mental illness along with her recovery from drug addiction.

Our lives today are vastly different from the self imposed hell we had found ourselves in as a result of our addiction. We are both members of a 12 step fellowship. We have a wonderful relationship and have been able to build an amazing life together and we are just getting started. We both have rewarding careers today in which we are employable and have been for years. We have been able to mend relationships with our families and develop new friendships with some of the most amazing people in recovery that want nothing but the best for us and support us in everything we do. The spiritual principles that have been instilled in us through the process of recovery have allowed us to have a life today that we never imagined possible. If you or anyone you know is struggling with addiction, there is hope for a better life. Help is available if you want it. We can and do recover!
